NAIYA GILL

Empowering Change through
LAW AND RESILIENCE

Naiya Gill's story unfolds like a vivid embroidery, rich with the colors of adversity, resilience, and triumph. From the nurturing land of Batala to the elegant streets of Chandigarh to the serene landscapes of British Columbia, her journey is not just a geographic traverse but a profound evolution of spirit and ambition. As a single mother, her narrative intertwines the relentless pursuit of legal excellence with the tender care of motherhood, making her a paragon of strength and empathy. Her legal practice, rooted in a deep understanding of human struggles, reflects a commitment to justice that is both compassionate and unyielding. Each case she handles, every client she advises, carries the imprint of her personal journey infused with a philosophy that sees law not merely as a profession but as a vital instrument of change. Naiya Gill doesn't just practice law; she weaves it into the larger fabric of societal transformation, making her a beacon for those in search of advocacy and a voice for the voiceless.

Foundations of Fortitude: Naiya Gill's Academic and Personal Genesis

Naiya Gill's formative years in Chandigarh, India, were marked by a unique confluence of academic brilliance and familial resilience. Born into a modest family, she was introduced early to the virtues of hard work and dedication by her mother, who supported the family by stitching clothes. Her father, an aspirant of higher education himself, instilled in her a deep respect for learning, encouraging her to pursue law despite her initial passion for fashion designing.

Her academic journey was nothing short of remarkable. At the tender age of two, Naiya moved in with her maternal uncle, returning to her own home years later to join a school where she not only caught up with her peers but excelled beyond expectations. By the time she reached eighth grade, Naiya was outperforming classmates who had been on a more conventional educational path. She has also seen days where Naiya and her sister used to split one book into parts and study because of family situations. As most of their expenses were going to her brother's Cancer treatment. Despite all difficulties, her teachers were often amazed by her ability to grasp complex subjects quickly and effectively.

Naiya Gill's decision to follow in her father's footsteps and pursue a career in law marked the beginning of her profound commitment to justice and advocacy. Attending Panjab University in Chandigarh, she studied Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws, while simultaneously working in a boutique to support her education. This period was pivotal in transforming her perception of law from a mere profession to a true calling. Encouraged by her father and shaped by her experiences during these formative years, Naiya developed a deep passion for justice and advocacy. It was during this time that she began to see the significant impact she could make through law, setting her on a path to become a formidable advocate for those without a voice. This early phase of her career also included practical experience working on rural development cases with her father, further enriching her understanding of the field, and leading to the establishment of her own practice within five months of her professional start back in 1998. Simultaneously, she completed her Master's in Public Administration, integrating her legal expertise with a broader understanding of public policy.

The Legal Labyrinth: Naiya Gill's Ascendancy in Law

Naiya Gill's professional journey is a narrative of ambition, mentorship, and legal prowess. Upon completing her law degree at Panjab University, she began her career under the tutelage of esteemed lawyers, including Mr. Hira Lal Sibal, father of Mr. Kapil Sibal, a former Law Minister.

This foundational experience in Chandigarh High Court allowed her to quickly excel, and she was recognized as the youngest female lawyer at the court. Her father's promotion to Deputy Director of Rural Development, Punjab also offered her unique opportunities to handle rural cases, enriching her understanding of diverse legal challenges.

Her relocation to Canada in February 2018 as her daughter expressed her interest in studying in UCLA marked a significant pivot in her career. Despite personal tragedies, including the loss of her husband in 2020, Naiya persevered and navigated the complexities of recertification. She cleared her NCA Exams for accreditation of her Law degree and also passed her Barrister and Solicitor exams, even as she managed family responsibilities and initially struggled with job losses during the early days of the COVID-19 pandemic. She did not stop here, Naiya managed to beg her name in the CDI College with honours clearing her Immigration Consultant exams. Naiya's tenacity was further highlighted as she not only cleared these hurdles but also excelled by becoming a recognized member of the British Columbia Legal Aid Panel, showcasing her unwavering commitment to providing legal services to those in need. Her career trajectory is a testament to her determination and dedication to justice and advocacy, reflecting her deep-rooted passion for the law.

Naiya Gill's professional growth was significantly shaped by the guidance she received from esteemed mentors and coaches. She is particularly grateful to Aamer Chaudhary, a Constitutional law coach from NCA Guru in Ontario, who played a crucial role in her preparation for her NCA exams. Naiya acknowledges the invaluable support and dedication of her mentors, including Mohd. Kaashif Sarwar, Snober Naaz, and the camaraderie of her classmates. Their collective effort, which often extended up to eighteen hours of study and discussion a day, was instrumental in her success in clearing all her exams. This network of support not only enhanced her legal expertise but also strengthened her resolve and commitment to her career.

Mastery of Law: Naiya Gill's Diverse Legal Specializations

Naiya Gill's legal practice is defined by a broad and deep understanding of several key areas of law, reflecting her commitment to both excellence and empathy. In Family Law, she provides compassionate counsel in matters of divorce, custody, and guardianship, where sensitivity and assertiveness are crucial. Her expertise in Real Estate Law enables her to navigate complex property transactions and disputes, ensuring clients' investments are secure and legally sound. In the realm of Immigration Law, Naiya excels in helping individuals and families navigate the intricacies of immigration processes, reflecting her own personal journey and challenges. Her proficiency in Corporate Law is evident in her ability to manage business formations, mergers, and contract negotiations, providing robust support for businesses at various stages of growth. She mentioned how her first job with Kinnman and Associates as a Law Clerk helped her with working on Corporate Law and Wills. Naiya is also hands on helping with Wills and Power of Attorney. This comprehensive legal acumen is complemented by her commitment to legal aid, underscoring her dedication to making legal services accessible to all, regardless of their economic status. Through her diverse practice Naiya Gill not only advocates for her clients but also mentors emerging lawyers, enriching the legal community with her knowledge and passion.

Resilience Redefined: Naiya Gill's Challenges and Triumphs

Naiya Gill's life and legal career have been deeply shaped by her encounters with profound personal adversity. The impact of cancer on her family, affecting her brother in his early years, who succumbed to the disease and her husband's death has infused her with a rare depth of empathy and resilience. These personal trials have not only tested her fortitude but have also deeply influenced her philosophical outlook on life and her professional conduct.

Witnessing her brother's early struggle with cancer and later grappling with her husband's illness and eventual loss, Naiya faced the stark realities of life's fragility. Such experiences taught her the harsh lessons of impermanence and the value of every moment, lessons that have profoundly shaped her approach to law and life. Her legal practice has become a conduit through which she channels her understanding of human suffering, striving to mitigate the legal burdens of those enduring their darkest hours.

In the professional realm, these experiences have honed her ability to navigate complex emotional and legal landscapes with grace and professionalism. Her empathetic approach is not merely a facet of her personality but a critical component of her legal strategy, allowing her to advocate passionately and effectively for her clients. It's in the courtroom and beyond that Naiya's personal history informs her relentless pursuit of justice and her commitment to serving those in need. Her resilience has also driven her to give back to the community in significant ways. Naiya Gill's philosophy of treating everyone as equals and her advocacy for women's empowerment are also reflected in her future aspirations to establish an NGO for abandoned girls, showcasing her commitment to using her skills and resources for broader social impact. These principles are not just ideals but practical guidelines that she implements daily, shaping her practice, influencing her community, and inspiring those around her.

Naiya Gill's journey through personal and professional adversity has not only shaped her into a formidable lawyer but has also established her as a pillar of strength within her community. Her story is a testament to the power of human spirit and the profound impact one individual can have on the lives of many, transforming personal grief into a legacy of hope, empowerment, and advocacy.

Family Foundations: The Core of Naiya Gill's Resilience

Naiya Gill's strength and motivation are deeply rooted in her family life. As a devoted mother to her 18-year-old daughter, Jivtesh Kaur Gill, and her 11-year-old son, Adeeb Singh Gill, Naiya has striven to instill values of resilience, equality, and compassion in her children. Her daughter, an accomplished student and talented golfer, has frequently expressed admiration for her mother's dedication and sacrifice, highlighting how Naiya's example has inspired her own pursuits. Adeeb, younger and equally observant of his mother's strength, embodies the cultural and moral teachings Naiya holds dear, reflecting the harmonious blend of their Hindu and Sikh heritage.

This family dynamic has not only supported Naiya through personal and professional challenges but has also been a foundational aspect of her community engagement efforts. Naiya's approach to parenting emphasizing the importance of education, empathy, and ethical living mirrors her professional ethos, making her home an extension of her broader societal contributions. Her children's perspectives and achievements are testaments to her role as both a mother and a mentor, further illustrating how her personal and professional lives are beautifully intertwined.

"I've seen my mom fight for us and more importantly give up for us. She fought for our rights, our happiness, and she gave up everything for our happiness and a better life for us."

Philosophy in Practice: Naiya Gill's Personal and Professional Ethos

Naiya Gill's life and legal career are underpinned by a profound philosophy that integrates gratitude, resilience, and a steadfast commitment to empowerment. Her guiding principle, the more you are thankful, the more God gives you reasons to be thankful, reflects her enduring optimism and deeply held belief in the power of gratitude. This philosophy extends into her legal practice, where she emphasizes empathy and equality in every interaction, advocating for consistent self-improvement and dedication to one's goals.

Her professional motto, "Let God fight your battles," illustrates her faith and reliance on spiritual strength in overcoming life's challenges, a sentiment that resonates deeply with her clientele and colleagues alike. Naiya's approach to law transcends the confines of the courtroom, as she views her profession as a vehicle for societal change—empowering women and the underprivileged by providing them with legal representation and a voice.

Furthermore, her commitment to justice is matched by her dedication to community service. She frequently engages in legal aid work and mentors' new immigrants, guiding them through the complex legal landscape of their new home country. Her personal experiences as an immigrant and a single mother color her professional interactions, allowing her to connect with clients on a more intimate level, offering not just legal assistance but also moral and emotional support.

Heartbeat of the Community: Naiya Gill's Endeavors for Social Good

Naiya Gill's impact on her community is profound and heartfelt, extending far beyond the confines of legal frameworks to touch the lives of many. Her dedication shines in her efforts to establish an NGO for abandoned girls, a project close to her heart that promises new beginnings for those less fortunate. She embodies the belief that "every act of kindness is a ripple in the pond of social justice," making legal services accessible to those in dire need through her work.

Her role as a mentor to new immigrants enriches this tapestry, as she guides them not only through legal complexities but also through the cultural nuances of their new home. This guidance is more than procedural; it's a warm welcome into a community, helping them find their place in a new world. Naiya's community initiatives reflect her core values of empathy, justice, and equality, illustrating her commitment to not just succeeding in her career but elevating those around her, thus fostering a community that upholds the dignity of every individual.

"Beyond the Briefs: Naiya Gill's Creative and Personal Pursuits"

Naiya Gill's life outside the courtroom is characterized by a rich palette of creative and personal activities that reflect her multifaceted personality. Her passion for painting allows her to explore a world of colors and emotions on canvas, bringing her tranquility and joy. She often shares that "Each brushstroke is a meditation, a way to connect with my inner self and unwind." In the realm of culinary arts, Naiya finds similar solace and expression, "Cooking is like painting or writing a song. Just as there are so many notes or colors, there are so many flavors, it's how you combine them that sets you apart." Her kitchen becomes a haven where recipes act as both heritage and experiment, enabling her to forge deep connections with her heritage and her loved ones. Music also plays a significant role in her life, enhancing her environment and enriching her daily experiences, proving that her passions extend well beyond her professional identity. These personal endeavors not only provide balance but also enhance her ability to engage with the world with renewed vigor and perspective.

A Visionary's Blueprint: Naiya Gill's Profound Legacy

Naiya Gill envisions a future where her impact on the legal profession and community continues to expand. Jivtesh, her daughter, reflects on his mother's dedication, saying, "I've seen my mom fight for us and more importantly give up for us. She fought for our rights, our happiness, and she gave up everything for our happiness and a better life for us." Her words underscore the profound influence Naiya has not only as a lawyer but as a mother. Professionally, Naiya plans to continue growing her legal practice, focusing on broadening her areas of expertise and mentoring young lawyers. Her commitment to advocacy and mentorship is guided by the principle that "leadership is about making others better as a result of your presence and making sure that impact lasts in your absence." Naiya's future plans are not just goals but a continuation of her life's work striving for excellence, advocating for justice, and inspiring change.

Naiya Gill's story is one of profound resilience and unwavering dedication to the pillars of justice, community, and empowerment. Her journey from the corridors of Indian courts to the legal landscapes of Canada encapsulates her role as both a defender and a champion of the underrepresented. Through her legal expertise, community initiatives, and personal ventures, she has shaped a legacy that transcends the traditional boundaries of law. Naiya Gill remains a quintessential figure of inspiration and change, embodying the essence of what it means to serve and lead with heart and rigor. Her legacy is not merely in the cases won or laws interpreted, but in the lives touched and the communities transformed. ●

Canada Day

A KICK OFF TO SUMMER FESTIVALS ACROSS THE COUNTRY

As much as Canada Day is a decentralized festivity, the official celebrations are in Ottawa, in the region of Ontario. The parliament promotes concerts and cultural events in the presence of the General Governor and Prime Minister.

This holiday has been celebrated since 1867, when it was promulgated the Constitutional Act in Canada. This event also is known as The British North America Act, uniting three colonies: Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and the Province of Canada (nowadays Ontario and Quebec), making them a single dominion in the British Empire, Canada.

At that time, despite being part of the British Empire, Canada had more political autonomy and governance.

With time, the country obtained more and more independence, mainly with the approval of the Statute of Westminster in 1931. But it was just until 1982 with the approval of the Constitution Act, that Canada became completely free.

Initially, the commemoration was named as Dominion Day, but in 1982 it was officially renamed to Canada Day.

Canadians celebrate Canada Day by attending outdoor events, such as festivals, carnivals, parades, concerts, fireworks, and much more.

As the commemoration happens throughout the national territory, without connection between one place and another, there is no pattern: each city does it in its own way. But, in general, these are the common activities during party day.

This is the main holiday of the country, then Canadians are very participative, going to the streets dressed or painted in white and red, which are the flag colors. At last, this holiday represents the national effort to become completely independent.

As we mentioned, Canada Day

This is the main holiday of the country, then Canadians are very participative, going to the streets dressed or painted in white and red, which are the flag colors. At last, this holiday represents the national effort to become completely independent.

is celebrated in the whole country, but also in other cities outside the Canadian border. Therefore, if you have relatives or friends that live in other countries and want to celebrate this date with them by sending money, count on Western Union Canada.

Most communities across the country will host organized celebrations for Canada Day, usually outdoor public events, such as parades, carnivals, festivals, barbecues, air and maritime shows, fireworks, and free musical concerts, as well as citizenship ceremonies for new citizens. There is no standard mode of celebration for Canada Day; professor of International Relations at the University of Oxford Jennifer Welsh said of this: "Canada Day, like the country, is endlessly decentralized. There doesn't seem to be a central recipe for how to celebrate it—chalk it up to the nature of the federation." However, the locus of the celebrations is the national capital, Ottawa, Ontario, where large concerts, presided over by the Governor General, are held on Parliament Hill, as well as other parks around the city and in Hull, Quebec. The sovereign may also be in attendance at Canada Day celebrations in Ottawa; Queen Elizabeth II was present in 1990, 1992, and 1997. The Queen also helped celebrate Canada's 100th anniversary on 1 July 1967.

Under the federal Holidays Act, Canada Day is observed on 1 July unless that date falls on a Sunday, in which case 2 July is the statutory holiday, although celebratory events generally take place on 1 July even though it is not the legal holiday. If it falls on a Saturday, the following Monday is generally also a day off for those businesses ordinarily closed on Saturdays.

Canadians celebrate Canada Day in many ways including fireworks, parades, picnics, and events. Canada Day can also be viewed as a kick off to many of the festivals that happen across the country in July and August.

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION

The Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, known locally as "the Ex" is an annual event that takes place over the last two weeks in August. The Ex has over 1.4 million visitors annually and is one of Canada's largest annual fairs. Agriculturists, engineers, and scientists represent their country by exhibiting their discoveries. The grounds also have food stands, live entertainment, sporting events, a casino and a carnival with rides.

MONTREAL'S INTERNATIONAL JAZZ FESTIVAL

The Festival International de Jazz de Montreal puts on more than 650 concerts, featuring 3,000 artists from around the globe. Many of these concerts are free outdoor performances. The festival goes on from June 29th to July 8th, and attracts over 200,000 visitors from around the world.

THE CALGARY STAMPEDE

The Calgary Stampede is one of Canada's most famous festivals. It is a rodeo show that takes place July every year and is a major part of Calgary's cultural identity. The Stampede attracts millions of visitors of the ten days of rodeos, parades, agricultural competitions, races, parties and concerts at the Stampede grounds. The Stampede this year will be from July 7th to July 16th.

ROYAL NOVA SCOTIA INTERNATIONAL TATTOO

The Royal Nova Scotia International Tattoo is a weeklong event held from June 30th to July 3rd in Halifax, Nova Scotia. The event features military demonstrations, highland dancers, and bagpipes. Themed Tattoo performance are included in the event every year. Over 2,000,000 spectators enjoy the shows in arenas across Halifax, featuring thousands of performers from numerous countries.

RICHMOND NIGHT MARKET

The market happens every weekend all summer long, from April until October. This year, the theme is Summer Wonderland and there will be over 600 international food items from 110 booths and food trucks.

NEW FOUND LAND AND LABRADOR FOLK FESTIVAL

The 47th annual Newfoundland and Labrador Folk Festival happens on July 7th, 8th and 9th this year. The public is invited to Bannerman Park in St Johns for music, crafts and food. A portrait of Vandna Joshi, a woman with dark hair, smiling, wearing a blue cardigan over a white top and a long necklace with blue beads. She has her arms crossed.

UPLIFTING SUCCESS

Vandna Joshi's journey

from newcomer to a leader at
DIVERSE city Community
Resources Society

When Vandna Joshi came to Canada from Punjab, India, almost 20 years ago, she, like many other immigrants, faced unexpected challenges in her journey. With a degree in ayurvedic medicine, she was a highly trained and experienced health professional who owned her own nursing home in India. Interested in pursuing other educational opportunities, Vandna started exploring opportunities overseas to start a new life with her husband and son.

The avenues were limited back home and, after some research, we applied to immigrate to Canada. But I did not hear back on our application for four years!" says Vandna. "It was a long wait and in the meantime I was accepted at an Australian university for nursing. I was ready to go there, but destiny had something else planned when we received notice that our permanent residency application to Canada was accepted."

They chose Canada with high hopes and many dreams. But after arriving, Vandna was faced with the credential recognition headache so many skilled international professionals face. "I wanted to go back to school and hoped to do nursing here, but I was told I'd have to start at Grade 12 because my education had been completed more than five years ago!" she says. "That was very disappointing to hear as I had a family and I realized I needed to find a job to help support our son."

Thinking back on those early days from her current executive office at DIVERSEcity Community Resources Society in Surrey, BC, Vandna shares how hard it was to find work related to her field of expertise, even though she was fluent in English. She remembers feeling frustrated and uncertain about her future.

"My biggest challenge was to get employed while adapting to unfamiliar customs and overcoming homesickness and culture shock," she says.

However, Vandna forged ahead, seizing any opportunity that came her way — including a job at Walmart for minimum wage and then a front-line job at a financial institution.

But she wasn't content.

"I knew I was capable of so much more, so I started browsing educational opportunities again and came across a program at Kwantlen Polytechnic University and enrolled. Then, I completed a practicum at DIVERSEcity, which confirmed to me that I wanted my Canadian career path to focus on helping other newcomers."

After graduating, she started working full time with newcomer-serving agency ISSoBC before returning to DIVERSEcity as a work placement facilitator with a youth employment program.

"And I never looked back," she says. Recognizing her talent, savvy and passion, Vandna has risen up the ranks at DIVERSEcity to a leadership position, guiding the employment division of the registered charity to new heights.

"I understand firsthand the barriers and challenges many of our clients face as they try to enter the labour market and succeed in their careers in Canada. I care about their success so have always looked for ways to provide impactful services that help them achieve their goals," she says.

One way is by building relationships with the local business community. "I am so grateful to the employer and academic partners that work with us to give new immigrants and underemployed Canadians important work experience and educational training," she says.

Today, after more than a decade working with DIVERSEcity, which she refers to as "her second home," Vandna has taken her place at the top of the organization as Director of Social Entrepreneurship. In this newly created role, her connections in the community will be more important than ever as she trailblazes new paths for DIVERSEcity focused on innovation and growth.

"I am thrilled to be taking on this opportunity and leading this exciting portfolio of DIVERSEcity, which includes our pioneering Diverse Entrepreneurs Business Incubator, supported by TD Bank, and several social enterprises," she says.

As a non-profit organization, DIVERSEcity runs Buy Social-certified social enterprises that offer business-to-business services and fee-based skills training to help earn funds to benefit its charitable works, including its longstanding DIVERSEcity Interpretation and Translation Services, DIVERSEcity Skills Training Centre and CELPIP Language Testing Centre.

"Looking ahead, our social enterprise growth plans will be innovative, sustainable models that have a positive impact on our communities," she explains.

For Vandna, leading the Social Entrepreneurship portfolio is as much about people as progress.

"Leadership is a business of kindness and nurturing in all aspects. Prioritizing this not only leads to happier and more engaged employees but also contributes to the overall success and wellbeing of the organization," says Vandna, who is also known as a cultural ambassador at work, organizing staff celebrations for Holi, Vaisakhi and Diwali annually.

As a woman leader, Vandna also strongly advocates for women empowerment through education and financial independence and has been instrumental in designing programs that support this. For her efforts, Vandna was named the Surrey Women in Business Non-Profit Leader Award winner in 2022.

"My mother has been an inspiration to me in my life and the reason I admire strong, independent women who strive to balance work and family priorities while uplifting others," says Vandna. A strong professional and mother who strives to uplift others while succeeding in her own right? That's certainly the perfect description for Vandna Joshi herself.

JATINDER JAY MINHAS

A NAME TO RECKON WITH ELEGANCE, GENEROSITY AND SUCCESS

From being a philanthropist to a businessman and a film producer to a great family man, Jay Minas dons many hats. Like almost every South Asian, starting with a humble beginning, in 1983, he immigrated to Canada for a better future. With an awful economic situation and high interest rates during that time, he had to start working on a Farm in Richmond on a meager wage of $3.65 per hour. But with a determined mind and a never look back attitude, he slowly moved to success.

During his formative years, Sr. Avtar Singh Nijjar, his friend, helped him to find his passion. Then, in 1984, he started plying Taxi in the downtown area and engaged deeply in succession, as he owned a Yellow Cab Service. In 1991, he stepped into the real estate business and started Elegant Development and Holidays Ltd. along with two partners Mr. Surinder Bhatti and Mr. Tesh Chhachhi. It is here he understood the intricacies of this construction business. In 1997 he became the sole owner of this construction and development business in the name and style of Elegant Development Inc. With a mindset to move ahead and work hard to achieve his dreams, he has played a key role in development and general contracting, including single and multi-family dwellings, commercial development and construction projects, land acquisition, subdivision and development in the cities of Vancouver, Richmond, Burnaby, Coquitlam and Surrey, British Columbia. He is also a part owner of the Reflections Banquet Hall and Convention Hall in Surrey.

Along with his extensive commercial endeavors, Jay is also a committed community leader with active personal involvement and fund-raising. His philanthropic involvement in Canada and India speaks volumes of his giving nature. He believes in giving back to the community he belongs to.

He has served as President of PICS Surrey for 3 years (2007-2010). Being President, he played a lead role for the construction of PICS Assisted Living.

In India, he has helped in raising various projects like:

- Eye Hospital in Adampur, where over 10,000 surgeries have been successfully performed

- Sant Baba Bagh Singh University (SBBSU), where he is serving as International Advisor
- Guru Nanak Mission Hospital in Mithapur Jalandhar, this hospital has 200 beds. For all this, he owes this inspiration to his rev. father, who stated, Garib da mooh, Guru Di Golak (to feed a poor is Guru's blessings).
- He has played an instrumental role in installing a sewerage system in his ancestral village Damunda, in Punjab. He also financed the new school building of the Damunda School.
- He is actively working on his dream project to build a stadium and memorial for martyrs of Saragarhi.

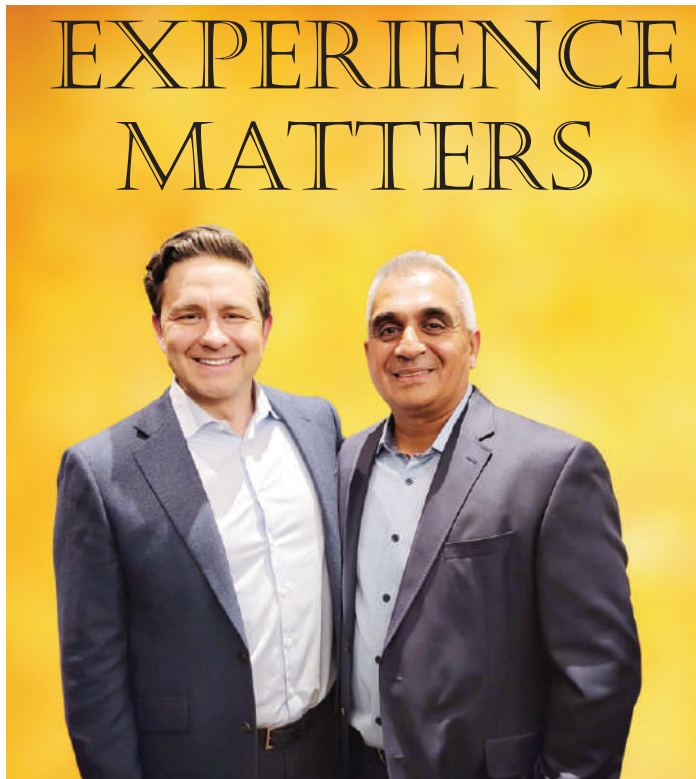

An active Rotarian, he has served as a President of Rotary Club Vancouver Fraserview and has been honored with the Paul Harris Fellowship Award given to Rotarians who have made significant contributions to Rotary projects. He also likes to contribute to society by creating meaningful cinema. He is known for his movies like Sarabha: Cry for Freedom, Saak (2019) and Barefoot Warriors.

He is actively engaged in sponsoring poets via NA Writers Association of Canada. He is a Charter member of Canadian India foundation. He is an active member of the BC Cancer Foundation and aspires to play a pivotal role in New Cancer Centre in Surrey. He is also the founding member of Guru Nanak food bank and wants to start a dedicated building for the same.

When asked where he sees himself in business in the next 10 years, he opined, "I will continue to take risks. If an entrepreneur is not a risk taker, then he should get the hell out of it."

Jack has demonstrated example of always fighting for the common person, fighting crime, and fighting to make Canada a better place now and for future generations. Jack will continue to fight for the residents of Surrey in Ottawa and ensure we are both fiscally responsible and accountable to the taxpayer.

Jack has lived in Fleetwood-Port Kells for over 22 years. He is a family-focused father of 2 children. Jack retired as an RCMP Staff Sergeant with over 25 years of policing experience. His law enforcement career began as a front-line police officer here in Surrey. He clearly understands Surrey's law and order issues and has valuable insights into the solutions we need. Community service along with personal integrity have been a cornerstone of Jack's public life. He has represented the City of Surrey on multiple community driven committees and boards. One of Jack's most accomplished legacies was to introduce the Ethic Officer into the City of Surrey, which has been copied by Vancouver and is being proposed province wide.

As a long-term Conservative, Jack Hundial believes in the free market and that people should take responsibility for their actions and own futures.

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A WILL AND A POWER OF ATTORNEY IN BC?

When communicating the importance of a Will to a client, it's essential to convey the significance of this legal document in a clear and compelling manner. Here, in this article I am going to discuss some of the important points and differences regarding Power of Attorney and Will. By discussing these points thoughtfully and addressing any questions or concerns they may have, you can effectively convey to your client the importance of having a Will and why it is a crucial part of their overall financial and estate planning strategy.

Understanding the Differences Between Power of Attorney and Will

In matters of legal and financial planning, two crucial documents often come into play: the Power of Attorney (POA) and the Will. While both are essential tools for managing one's affairs, they serve distinct purposes and are executed under different circumstances. Understanding the differences between these documents can help individuals make informed decisions regarding their estate planning and personal welfare.

Power of Attorney (POA)

A Power of Attorney is a legal document that grants someone else the authority to act on your behalf in financial, legal, or medical matters. The person granting the authority is known as the principal, and the individual receiving the authority is the "attorney-in-fact" or "agent."

Types of Power of Attorney

- 1. General Power of Attorney: Grants broad powers to the agent, allowing them to handle various financial and legal matters on behalf of the principal.
- 2. Special (or Limited) Power of Attorney: Limits the agent's powers to specific actions or specific periods of time. For example, it may grant authority only for the sale of a property or for managing investments.

- 3. Durable Power of Attorney: Remains valid even if the principal becomes incapacitated. This type is crucial for situations where the principal may become unable to make decisions due to illness or injury.

Key Features of a Power of Attorney

- Revocability: The principal can revoke or amend the Power of Attorney as long as they are mentally competent.
- Duration: Unless specified otherwise, a Power of Attorney typically ceases to be valid upon the death of the principal.
- Purpose: Primarily used for managing affairs during the principal's lifetime, especially in situations where they are unable to act on their own behalf.

Will

A Will, also known as a Last Will and Testament, is a legal document that outlines how a person's assets and properties should be distributed after their death. It also appoints an executor to carry out these wishes and may include other provisions such as guardianship of minor children and funeral arrangements.

Key Features of a Will

- Irrevocability after Death: A Will only becomes effective upon the death of the testator (the person making the Will) and can be revoked or amended at any time before death, provided the testator is mentally competent.

- Distribution of Assets: Specifies how the testator's assets and properties should be distributed among beneficiaries. It covers everything from real estate and investments to personal belongings.
- Appointment of Executor: Names a person (executor) responsible for ensuring the terms of the Will are carried out as per the testator's wishes.

Main Differences

- 1. Timing of Effectiveness: A Power of Attorney is effective during the principal's lifetime and ceases upon their death, whereas a Will only comes into effect after the testator's death.
- 2. Purpose: A Power of Attorney is used for managing affairs when the principal is alive but incapacitated, while a Will dictates how assets are distributed after death.
- 3. Revocability: A Power of Attorney can be revoked or amended by the principal while they are alive and mentally competent, whereas a Will becomes irrevocable upon the testator's death.

Conclusion

Both a Power of Attorney and a Will are critical components of comprehensive estate planning. While a Power of Attorney ensures someone can act on your behalf during your lifetime, a Will provides instructions for the distribution of your assets after your death. Understanding these distinctions enables individuals to make informed decisions to protect their interests and ensure their wishes are carried out, both during their lifetime and beyond.

In essence, a Power of Attorney empowers someone to act on your behalf while you are alive, whereas a Will ensures your wishes are carried out after you pass away.

In British Columbia, Canada, the concepts of Power of Attorney (POA) and Will are similar to those in other jurisdictions but are governed by specific provincial laws. Here's a breakdown of their differences within the context of British Columbia:

Power of Attorney (POA) in British Columbia

- Types of POA: Similar to other regions, British Columbia recognizes different types of Power of Attorney:
 - General Power of Attorney: Grants broad powers to the attorney-in-fact to manage financial and legal affairs.
 - Enduring Power of Attorney: Allows the attorney-in-fact to continue acting on behalf of the donor even if the donor becomes mentally incapable.
 - Limited or Specific Power of Attorney: Grants specific powers for a limited purpose or period.
- Execution: A Power of Attorney in British Columbia must be signed and witnessed by two adults who are not beneficiaries or relatives of the donor. It must also be clear about the powers granted and any limitations.
- Use and Revocation: A Power of Attorney is typically used when the donor is alive but unable to manage their affairs due to incapacity or other reasons. It can be revoked or amended by the donor as long as they are mentally capable.

Will in British Columbia

- Requirements: A Will in British Columbia must be in writing, signed by the testator (person making the Will) in the presence of two witnesses who must also sign the Will. Witnesses cannot be beneficiaries or spouses of beneficiaries to ensure impartiality.
- Executor: The Will appoints an executor who is responsible for carrying out the instructions outlined in the Will, including distributing assets and managing estate affairs.
- Distribution of Assets: The Will specifies how the testator's assets, properties, and possessions are distributed among beneficiaries after their death.
- Probate: In British Columbia, some Wills may require probate, a court-supervised process to validate the Will and authorize the executor to administer the estate. This depends on the nature and value of the assets involved.

Key Differences

- Timing of Effectiveness: A Power of Attorney is effective during the donor's lifetime, while a Will becomes effective only after the testator's death.
- Purpose: A Power of Attorney is used for managing affairs during the donor's lifetime, particularly if they are incapacitated. A Will directs the distribution of assets after the testator's death.
- Revocation: Both a Power of Attorney and a Will can be revoked or amended by the donor or testator, respectively, provided they are mentally competent. However, a Will becomes irrevocable upon the testator's death.

Conclusion

Understanding the differences between Power of Attorney and Will in British Columbia is crucial for effective estate planning and ensuring one's wishes are carried out both during their lifetime and after death. Both documents serve distinct purposes under provincial laws, emphasizing the importance of seeking legal advice to tailor these documents according to individual needs and circumstances in British Columbia.

These skills enable her to provide comprehensive care tailored to the unique needs of each patient. Whether addressing vertigo, chronic pain, or sports injuries, Jasline integrates these advanced techniques into her practice, ensuring optimal outcomes for her patients. As the landscape of healthcare continues to evolve, so too does the practice of physiotherapy. SMALL STEPS, BIG IMPACT

How One Young Girl is MAKING A DIFFERENCE IN HER COMMUNITY

TAVISHA KOCCHAR

Starting a nonprofit organization in grade 6 was a pivotal moment in my life, one driven by a combination of urgency and hope as the BC wildfires ravaged our beautiful province. Witnessing the widespread destruction and the toll it took on people, wildlife, and the environment moved me deeply. I felt an overwhelming sense of responsibility and an urgent need to contribute to the preservation of our natural surroundings. With the support of my family and friends, I embarked on a mission to make a difference, no matter how small it might seem at the time. I first started making pen and pencil holders from recycled tin cans. As I got more traction and support we started to organize bottle drives and samosa sales. This early experience instilled in me a profound commitment to environmental stewardship and community service, fueling my passion for making a positive difference.

I have always made decisions based on my core values of respect, equity, compassion, and kindness. These values are the guiding principles behind all my actions and initiatives. Respect ensures that I honour the dignity of every individual, fostering an environment of mutual understanding and regard. Together, these values shape my actions and decisions, ensuring that I contribute positively to my community and promote a more inclusive and caring society. One of the most rewarding aspects of my journey has been the impact on my community. The tangible results of our efforts, whether it's seeing a neighbourhood restored, a family supported, or a young person inspired, reinforce my commitment. Each smile, word of gratitude, and positive change serves as a powerful reminder of why I began this journey. These moments of fulfillment transform challenges into opportunities for growth and learning, driving me to persist despite difficulties. The joy of making a difference and contributing to the well-being of my community provides an enduring source of inspiration, ensuring that the rewards far outweigh the struggles. The community has been very kind to me by recognizing and rewarding my efforts with prestigious awards such as the Surrey Board of Trade 25 under 25, Drishti Award, and Soroptimist Violet Richardson Award to name a few. The most notable recognition I was awarded was the Princess Diana Award. This prestigious recognition affirmed the value of my efforts and ignited a renewed sense of purpose within me. Looking ahead, I aspire to pursue a career in law and ultimately become a judge. This ambition is driven by a passion for justice and a commitment to making a meaningful impact in my community. In conclusion, my journey from starting a nonprofit in grade 6 to receiving the Diana Award and aspiring to a career in law has been driven by a deep commitment to environmental stewardship, community service, and justice. My core values of respect, equity, compassion, and kindness guide my actions and decisions, ensuring that I contribute positively to my community and promote a more inclusive and caring society. The challenges I face only strengthen my resolve, and the satisfaction of helping others continues to inspire me.

THE PANTHIC LEHAR IN PUNJAB IN 2024

LANDSLIDE WINS OF BHAI AMRITPAL SINGH AND BHAI SARABJIT SINGH KHALSA

The electoral victories of pro-Khalistan radical preacher Amritpal Singh from Punjab's Khadoor Sahib, and Sarabjit Singh Khalsa, the son of Beant Singh, have brought the focus back to the State's troubled past and voters' growing disenchantment with mainstream parties. According to the State observers, the traditional parties mostly stand discredited due to the growing burden of debt, corruption, farmers' distress, drug abuse and unrelenting overseas migration from Punjab.

Both Singh and Khalsa had contested as independent candidates in this Lok Sabha election. While Singh defeated Congress candidate Kulbir Singh Zira with a margin of over 1,97,120 votes, Khalsa defeated Aam Aadmi Party's (AAP) Karamjit Singh Anmol with a margin of over 70,000 votes.

During his campaign, Khalsa said that he was convinced by the community to contest the election. He galvanised support on the issues related to the desecration of the Sikh scripture Guru Granth Sahib, the release of Bandi Singhs (Sikh prisoners who completed their jail terms), the drug menace, Punjab's right over its river water and the farmers' demand for minimum support price on food crops.

Amritpal Singh remains in preventive custody under the National Security Act (NSA), in Assam's Dibrugarh Central Jail for over a year now. Other candidates on the Khadoor Sahib seat, formerly a Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD) stronghold, included SAD's Virsa Singh Valtoha, a former aide of the slain Sikh militant leader Jarnail Singh Bhindranwale; Laljit Singh Bhullar of AAP; and the former MLAs Kulbir Singh Zira (Congress) and Manjit Singh Mianwind (Bharatiya Janata Party).

Khadoor Sahib was the epicentre of militancy and is also home to several important Sikh shrines. As the area remains in the grip of drug abuse and agrarian distress, Amritpal Singh acquired a reputation for his campaign against drug addiction. Security forces launched a crackdown on his Waris Punjab De ('Inheritors of Punjab', a Sikh volunteer political group campaigning for a separate sovereign Sikh State) March last year, when he disappeared from the public sight. He was arrested after a month-long manhunt in Moga's Rode village, the birthplace of militant leader Bhindranwale who was killed in Operation Blue Star.

The Sikh separatist movement which calls for the establishment of a separate Sikh homeland, or Khalistan and its impact also found a mention in the Pew survey which said, "Sikh-Hindu relations were marked by violence in the 1970s and 1980s, when demands for a separate Sikh state covering the Punjab regions in both India and Pakistan (also known as the Khalistan movement) reached their apex”.

Meanwhile, Sikhs were also more likely than other religious communities to see communal violence as a problem in the country. 78 percent of them rated communal violence as a major issue against 65 percent of Hindus and Muslims, the survey showed.

Sarabjeet Singh Khalsa is a resident of Mohali, and the 45-year-old has unsuccessfully contested three elections in 2004, 2007 and 2014 the former two on a Shiromani Akali Dal (Amritsar) ticket and the last on a Bahujan Samaj Party ticket.

His family members had successfully contested elections years earlier. In 1989, his mother, Bimal Kaur Khalsa, won the Lok Sabha polls from Ropar, while his grandfather Sucha Singh won the Bathinda seat both on Shiromani Akali Dal (Amritsar) tickets. Both Khadoor Sahib and Faridkot are parliamentary seats on the international border with Pakistan. The victory of radicals on these seats will likely give a strong fillip to the consolidation of the otherwise marginalised extremist forces in the state.

“The rising popularity of the radicals, as it may seem from the election results, is going to pose the biggest problem for the Bhagwant Mann-led AAP government in the state. Does Mann have the political maturity and the sagacity to deal with the possibility of the emergence of such forces remains to be seen,” said professor Jagrup Singh Sekhon, formerly with the political science department of the Guru Nanak Dev University in Amritsar. Professor Paramjit Judge, a renowned historian, told that while this development in the election results isn’t expected to have much of an immediate impact on Punjab politics, it was the direct result of the failure of the AAP to stitch up an alliance with the Congress in Punjab as had been done at the national level. “The alliance would not have given space to any other force to rise. But the personal egos of the leaders involved did not allow that to happen.

All eyes will be on the Mann government — how it handles this sentiment. Though, they do not have much of a reputation in this field. More often than not, they have been criticised for flirting with the radical elements themselves,” added Kaur.

It is pertinent to mention here that behind the victories of Amritpal and Sarabjeet was the ghost of Punjab’s unsolved issues such as the farm crisis, SYL canal row, transfer of Chandigarh to Punjab, justice in the extra judicial killings of youth during militancy, slapping of UAPA and NSA cases against youth.

All these issues collectively created a political void, which, coupled with the mistrust on traditional politics by a section of Sikh voters led to the two independents winning big in the 2024 Lok Sabha elections.

Most of the Sikhs wanted to correct this mistake, and hence there was a collective agreement over the fact that Amritpal should win this time. However, with this development, polarization will increase in Punjab. This will also have an impact on Punjab’s Dalit politics. The way AAP won in the 2014 parliamentary polls—the party had won four Lok Sabha seats in Punjab—shocked the entire nation, the same way radical politics is rising in Punjab now.

WHAT NARENDRA MODI 3.0 MEANS FOR INDIA

The resounding victory of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) coalition in India's federal election represents a key marker in the modern history of India. It was the most extensive and probably most expensive election campaign in the country's history, with 900 million voters casting their votes in one million polling stations over 38 days. Some 83 million Indians were first-time voters.

The great Indian festival of democracy—as the elections are often called—is seen as the most challenging exercise in making all Indians feel they have a say in the running of the government. And the return of Narendra Modi as prime minister is both an opportunity and challenge for the country.

The 2019 parliamentary elections were the most “presidential” since the era of prime minister Indira Gandhi four decades ago, with a focus more on the personality of one leader (and his track record) than the candidates standing for office and their respective parties.

Modi's larger-than-life presence

Modi was projected as the only leader who would revive the great Indian civilisation and save the country from the powerful elites and corrupt politicians who made up what the BJP deemed the “anti-national” opposition.

At times in the campaign, his personality assumed almost mythological proportions. The defining image was of the Indian leader shedding his regal robes and retreating to a bare cave, close to one of the important centres of Hindu pilgrimage, where he meditated in a monastic saffron shawl. This reinforced his popular image as a puritanical and incorruptible leader whose first choice in life was to be a monk.

In contrast to this imagery, the opposition parties ran lazy, tired campaigns that failed to have much impact.

The Congress party, the country's once-dominant political party, did not improve much on its devastating results from the last 2 elections. Priyanka Gandhi Vadra, the sister of Congress president Rahul Gandhi, tried hard to mobilise voters with rousing speeches and campaign events, but these were just brief moments in the longest campaign in Indian electoral history.

The Congress party's traditional hubris showed little signs of abating as it abandoned any chance of building potentially winning coalitions that could have countered the Modi juggernaut.

The only real resistance to the BJP-led coalition came from India's largest state of Odisha & Madhya Pradesh, where two strong regional parties suspended their traditional rivalry to establish an alliance.

In part due to these social welfare schemes, the BJP expanded its presence in states where it has traditionally had little previous success, including Bengal, Odisha, and many parts of southern India.

What Modi's win means for India

So, what can Indians expect from a BJP-led government for the next five years? Based on what we have seen since 2019, the government will be centralised and driven primarily from Modi's office. Fortunately, the messiness of Indian democracy and the strengths of the constitution will prevent the country from leaning towards authoritarianism, so that should not be a concern.

The previous Modi government has shown it was possible to take a pragmatic approach to social and economic policies.

There are many key challenges that will require a fine balancing act. These include a further liberalising of the economy, with the structural changes needed to make it easier to do business in India and attract more foreign investment. Creating jobs and skills training for the vast numbers of young Indians remains a formidable challenge, as does India's struggling agrarian sector, which has reached a crisis point.

It remains to be seen if the activism of the BJP's rank-and-file members, as well as the party's supporters in the Hindu nationalist movement, can be managed without compromising on key policies that India needs for social cohesion and to continue growing the economy. It will also fall to Modi to reassure ethnic and religious minorities—many of whom have fallen victim to Hindu mob attacks—that they are part of an inclusive vision for the country.

In terms of foreign policy, Modi has demonstrated deftness in New Delhi's relations with powers like China and the US, as well as other countries in the region. There are sure to be new challenges with Pakistan, in particular, as well as an increasingly belligerent China, but Modi has already shown he has a unique ability to build a personal rapport with other leaders.

SVE JUST MADE THE CADILLAC ESCALADE-V SEEM UNDERPOWERED

Enter the 2023 SXR Series Supercharged Escalade. SVE didn't just add a host of parts to the Escalade's factory 6.2-liter naturally-aspirated V-8 engine and call it a day. Instead, the Escalade now gets a blueprinted aluminum block, race-quality computer-balanced rotating assembly, including forged 1538MV twisted steel crankshaft and forged aluminum pistons, upgraded cylinder heads, and a high-output supercharger assembly. Topping it all off is a custom stainless steel exhaust system that lets the engine breathe better and emit a more emotional sound.

The result of this transformation is an insane amount of power- 800 buff horses and 720 pound-feet of torque to be precise. For reference, the high-performance Escalade-V suddenly seemed underwhelming as its supercharged 6.2-liter V-8 "only" produces 682 horsepower and 653 pound-feet. And while no 0-60 mph times were quoted by SVE, they claim that the SXR qualifies as the quickest 2023 limited-production full-size SUV. It's somehow believable considering that it even makes more grunt than the 710-horsepower Dodge Durango Hellcat.

All of that power will be for nothing if it did not come with any handling upgrades. Thankfully, SVE took that into account as the package comes with a large diameter heavy-duty rear sway bar and bushings to control its acceleration. The package also includes Brembo six-piston big front brake calipers and 16.1-inch vented rotors, which interestingly are supplied by Cadillac dealers. Of course with all that power, you naturally want to show it off somehow, right? SVE gave the Escalade a set of unique 22-inch alloy wheels and an 800HP badge at the tailgate. There's also various exterior add-ons that delete the chrome trimmings in favor either black or body-colored ones. For a better stance, you can opt for two types of suspension. The first one is a sport suspension that drops the front and rear by 2 and 3 inches, respectively. The other one is an adjustable lowering kit for Escalades fitted with the adaptive suspension. The upgrades are much more minor in the cabin. These are limited to a SXR logos embroidered on the headrests and floor mats, along with SXR door sill plates. A numbered dash plaque and two numbered key fobs with the SXR emblem are also included. Lastly, a portfolio with the embroidered logo, owner's manual, and window sticker are also included in the package.

So, how much do these upgrades cost? The SXR Series Supercharged Escalade (and Escalade ESV) rings it at $69,995, and this is just for the conversion. Buyers will have to dish out that dough plus the additional Escalade V-8's MSRP of $79,295. As mentioned, these upgrades are only meant for the 6.2-liter naturally-aspirated V-8, which means you can't add these upgrades if you bought the V-6 diesel or even the supercharged Escalade-V.
